Detailed description of project							Type of services provided
The Rule of Law Facility provides support for activities within the framework of the justice system reform programs of the countries mentioned above. Special attention will be given to activities which are not part of big donor-programs, but that make a valuable contribution to the justice reform program and/or are in need of prompt and short-term financing. The initial idea was to support the six countries by means of missions, small projects, study visits, seminars and one big project in Yemen. However, requests from the beneficiary countries were not so focused on study visits or seminars, but more on medium-sized projects with input of Dutch experts. Instead of a number of small activities in 5 countries and one big project in Yemen, the support has resulted in a number of medium to big sized projects in China, Indonesia, Mali and Yemen and some small sized activities in all the countries.							<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Yemen: project on case management in a number of courts in Sana'a. Focus was on changing court administration, Introduction of computers in the courts and software for court administration. Also ICT training was provided. - Mali: a number of NGO's in Mali specialize in training of paralegals. However, there was uniformity in the way paralegals were being trained. CILC has worked with them on a standard curriculum and course materials for training of paralegals. The curriculum was adopted formally by the Malian Government in a big stakeholders conference organized by CILC and its partners. - China: CILC experts have worked with Chinese experts on improvement of the Chinese Civil Code. This has taken place through workshops. - Georgia: CILC experts have contributed to the new Contract and Tax Law of Georgia and have trained Georgian judicial officers and other professionals on the new laws. Also a public awareness campaign has been set up. - Indonesia: a CILC project manager has trained staff members of local NGO's working in legal projects on project management and writing of proposals.
