Detailed description of project						Type and scope of services provided
This programme aims to increase the performance of public administration, police and justice system at local level and to restore the interaction between these state elements and society, among state and non-state institutions, creating a positive development spiral. Enhanced performance will increase confidence in state elements, reinforcing state legitimacy, decreasing popular discontent and diminishing the urge to "take the law into one's own hands". This would significantly contribute to human security and promoting rule of law in the target regions and contribute to breaking the vicious cycle of conflict. The programme introduces Cordaid's Performance Based Finance (PBF) approach and supports legitimate governments at local level to enable them to carry out their most essential tasks related to human security, by offering them performance contracts. The institutes will be financially rewarded for their performance and have the autonomy to spend their gained income in accordance with their own plan of action. The programme will also introduce the VNG approach of 'benchmarking' as another tool for improving performance and for encouraging horizontal cooperation. In benchmarking, the vertical accountability is absent. Instead, the participating units (communes, or police stations, or tribunaux de residence) are interested in learning from each other. With that aim, they collect and share data, compare and analyse them together, not to see who is best, but to see how each of them can learn from the others to further improve performance. The programme will be carried out in the African Great Lakes Region in 11 communes in the provinces Cibitoke, Bubanza and Bujumbura Rural of Burundi and in four territoires in the province of South Kivu of DR Congo. The expected results of the project are: Outcome 1: The involved representatives of the general public, Civil Society Organisations and State institutes at local level jointly defined, the main security issues for men and/or women of their respective territoires in DRC or communes in Burundi. Outcome 2: By the end of the programme period the performance of the involved state and non-state institutions in all intervention zones has increased with at least 30%. Outcome 3: The sense of women's influence in security provision in the intervention zone has considerably improved amongst women and men.						<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Overall project management and project coordination • Coordination of experts input at consultations and roundtables • Implementation of baseline study • Organisation of community meetings • Training on data registration • Training in court management • Regular review of Plan de Sécurité • Support to advocacy Legal sector • Organisation of final conference CILC staff consisted of a Project coordinator (116 working days) and Project officer (24 working days).
